NATIONAL LAW CONFERENCE 2021 : THE FIRST HYBRID NLC

The 'National Law Conference 2021' was held on the 12th and 13th of February 2021 at the Galadari Hotel, Colombo as the first Hybrid virtual and physical conference under the theme 'Futurism' focused on the ways in which the legal profession can be fashioned to meet the requirements of the fast developing and oncoming future while preserving the fundamentals within the profession.

The theme 'Futurism' was inspired by the Italian artists' movement in the 1920s, which highlighted the dynamism, speed, change and restlessness of the modern life. Emphasizing this, Mr. Hiran M.C. de Alwis, Chairman of NLC, stated that Futurism is an attempt to envisage a future with a new dynamic and not a new normal and thereby to fashion and guide new developments to make them a reality in practical means.

JUDGMENTS

Lansage Basil v. Hon. Attorney General
SC Appeal 20/2017
Decided on 3rd July 2020
Sisira J. de Abrew, J; Vijith K. Malalgoda PC, J; P. Padman Surasena, J.
Bail Application; Revision from High Court to Court of Appeal; Locus Standi of a person other than suspect; Sections 16(1), 16(2) and 16(3) of the Judicature Act

Lansage Basil, the Petitioner-Petitioner-Petitioner-Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the "Petitioner-Appellant") filed an application for bail in the High Court of Panadura seeking to enlarge his son (the suspect) on bail.

The learned High Court Judge by his order dated 13.1.2016 refused the application of the Petitioner-Appellant for bail. Being aggrieved by this Order, the Petitioner-Appellant who is the father of the suspect filed a revision application in the Court of Appeal seeking to revise and set aside the said order of the learned High Court Judge.

The Court of Appeal, by its judgment dated 8.8.2016 dismissed the said revision application. Being aggrieved by the said judgment of the Court of Appeal, the Petitioner-Appellant has appealed to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme court by its order dated 27.1.2017, granted leave to appeal inter alia on the following question of Law:
"Did the Court of Appeal err in law in deciding that the Petitioner has no locus standi to maintain the Application for Revision?"

Sisira J. de Abrew, J Held :

1. Their Lordships of the Court of Appeal have relied on the judgment of the Court of Appeal (judgment of Justice Jayasuriya) in the case of Senathilaka Vs Attorney General [1998] 3 SLR 290. The head note of the said judgment states as follows. "The father of the accused has no locus standi to maintain the revision application."

2. It is seen that in the above case, the Court of Appeal, after considering the conduct of the accused and belatedness of the revision application, refused to exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction and discretion of the Court of Appeal. His Lordship Justice Jayasuriya in the above case has not expressed a general view that the father of an accused in each and every case has no locus standi to maintain a revision application.

3. When Section 16(3) of the Judicature Act states that "nothing in this section shall in any way affect the power of the Court of Appeal to act by way of revision in an appropriate case", it has to be understood that revisionary power of the Court of Appeal has not been taken away by the above two sub sections [16(1) and 16(2)]. Section 16(3) of the Judicature Act in fact retains the revisionary power of the Court of Appeal notwithstanding what is stated in sub sections 16(1) and 16(2) of the Judicature Act.

4. The revision application of the Petitioner-Appellant was dismissed on the ground that the Petitioner-Appellant had no locus standi. It must be noted that revisionary power of the Court of Appeal is exercised in order to correct the errors or mistakes of judgments or orders of the courts of first instance. When an illegality or error of a judgment/order of the court of first instance is brought to the notice of the Court of Appeal, the Court of Appeal can, on its own motion, call for the record of the court of first instance and give directions to correct such errors or set aside such illegal judgments/orders. This view is supported by the judicial decision of this court in the case of Attorney General Vs Gunawardena [1996] 2 SLR 149.

   The expression "ex mero motu" according to "Wharton's Law Lexicon" 14th edition page 393 means "of his own accord".

5. For the above reasons, in the present case, dismissing the revision application of the Petitioner-Appellant on the basis that he had no locus standi is wrong.

BASL/REF/1/3/2021
Next Manufacturing (Pvt) Ltd. v. W.K.S. Jayasundara

SC Appeal No. 139/2017
Decided on 9th June 2020
S. Thurairaja PC, J; Vijith K. Malalgoda PC, J; P. Padman Surasena, J.
Industrial Disputes Act (as amended) Sections 12 to 15; Conciliation process and Settlements; Repudiation of Settlements; Jurisdiction of Labour Tribunal when Settled.

Next Manufacturing (Pvt) Ltd. is the Employer - Respondent –Appellant – Appellant (hereinafter referred to as the "Appellant"). The Employee, Ms. W.K.S. Jayasundara is the Applicant –Respondent –Respondent (hereinafter referred to as the "Employee – Respondent").

The Employer-Appellant raised a preliminary objection at the Inquiry in the Labour Tribunal that when section 12(1) settlement entered between the Employer-Appellant and Employee-Respondent under the Industrial Disputes Act (IDA), this application cannot be maintained before the Labour Tribunal.

The Labour Tribunal after Inquiry held that the Employer-Appellant inter alia that Section 12(1) settlement has been entered upon against the will of the Employee –Respondent therefore the termination of her services is unjust and inequitable hence awarded a sum of Rs. 297,000/-as compensation.

Being aggrieved by the order of the learned President of Labour Tribunal the Employer-Appellant appealed to the Provincial High Court which affirmed the order of the Labour Tribunal and dismissed the appeal.

Being aggrieved by the order of the Provincial High Court the Appellant preferred an appeal to Supreme Court wherein Leave was granted inter alia on the following question of Law:

"Whether the Labour Tribunal lacks jurisdiction to disturb a settlement made under section 12(1) of the Industrial Disputes Act which amounts to a full and final settlement in law?"

S. Thurairaja PC, J held that:

1. Conciliation process is dealt in Section 12(1) of the IDA. arrived at. In cases where the settlement arrived at is acceptable to both parties, a Memorandum setting out the terms of settlement is drawn up and signed by both parties or their representatives, and such Memorandum is transmitted with the least amount of delay to the Commissioner of Labour. Where the Commissioner is of the view that such settlement relates to a major issue, he is obligatory by Section 12 (6) of the IDA to cause such Memorandum of Settlement to be published in the Government Gazette, and notice of such publication is sent to both parties.

3. Section 15 of the IDA lays down the procedure for repudiation of a settlement. Section 15 (1) specifically states that where repudiation or termination of a Memorandum of Settlement is envisaged, such party repudiating the settlement must send notice of repudiation in the prescribed form to the Commissioner of Labour and every other party bound by the settlement, though not individually.

4. Thus it will be seen that any settlement to be repudiated by either party must follow the prescribed procedure.

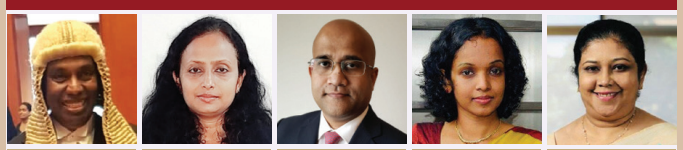

5. It must also be understood that the repudiation or termination of such a settlement will apply only to those parties who give such notice of repudiation or termination and not to others who have been parties to the settlement

6. The process of conciliation in the settlement of labour disputes of the greatest importance, specially in present context, when the process of mediation is being resorted to solving larger problems, both legal and otherwise.

7. When the matter is settled under section 12(1) of the IDA, the Labour Tribunal has no jurisdiction.
